A rew days ago a letter appeared in ou columns signed "Lex" in which the writer alluding to the Extradition Bill now before the Legislative Council, says it may be quite correct, as stated by us that "persons accused of an indictable offence within the fore the Magistrate if they are so advised ; and, be adds, "it is the Magistrate's duty was withdrawn some months ago, doubtless to take down the statements of the defendant and his witnesses and to warn the ac against him on the trial at the Supreme Court, but the Magistrate cannot weigh the evidence or come to any decision as to whether the defence is good or not. If the decision in Muller's case is to be followed no benefit of his experience, and see him fairly started. evidence of an alibi can be even received! course be declared when the_Bill_i proposed for second reading, and if it is considered that the duty of the Magistrate to receive whatever evidence the accused may be able to produce in his defence is left in doubt by the Bill as drafted it will doubtless be guended. The intentior evidently is that the Magistrate should investigate the case thoroughly, and place himself in a position to report upon it. Ou correspondent says it is the Magistrato's cannot weigh it or come to any decision as tu whether the defence is good or not. But by section 11 of the Bill it is directed that the Magistrate shall "seend to the Governor the depositions and other evidence in the case together with such report thereon as be thinks fit." The intention is clearly, we think, that the Magistrate shall weigh th evidence and come to a decision on the marits Rules of H.B.M. Supreme and other Courts of the case. The duty of the Magistrate this respect was clearly laid down in the case of Leuns Aru, decided in the Supreme Court on the 14th June, 1887. that case the Magistrate refused to heat evidence for the defence, and on this ground the Court ordered the discharge of the prisoner. "It appears," the Court says, in more energetic, in spite of the great heat, or its judgment, "that there were eight witnesses in attendance and tendered on behalf of the prisoner, and whether their evidence was worth anything or nothing, in our judgment they should have been examined." As to "Lex's " opinion as to the right of the Magistrate to take evidence of an alibi, we note Colomboun to be one of the Burmo-China that in the judgment in Laune Apr's case the Court quotes and adopts the following passage from a judgment by the late Mr. Justice Snowden in a similar case:-" In the depositions there was no statement that all it does not appear that they were asked

"Forward," in the Regimental News, writes -I cannot help noticing how little interest is taken in the playing of the Band and Pipers at the Public Gardens. The contrast between this place and Caylon is very marked in this respect. In Colombo, when the Band played on the Galle Face, everyone attended, from the Governor downwards. Indeed the crowd was so great, both of Europeans and Natives, that a space had to be railed off for the Band. The Public Gardens here are far before the Galle Face as a place of resort, which makes it all the more remarkable. Is it that the people of Cevion are that—the people of Hongkong are less musical than the people of Caylon? I am told that the Band of the last Regiment always performed in the Gardens on Sunday, but such is against our

Mr. Hastings, in opening the case for the de endant said plaintiff claimed that he was promoter of the Company, but he neither per formed the duties nor accepted the responsibilities of a promoter. The only character which the plaintiff assumed was that of agent for the distribution of the prospectus and convassor for applicants for the shares. One per cent. on the amount of those shares amounts to 8417, which I have paid into Court. Mr. Sampson sent in his account on the 31st March. I did not give Mr. Sampson 4,000 shares to place. This concluded the case for the defence. Mr. Hasting said the first point to decide was in what character the plaintiff claimed. He submitted he could not claim as a promoter A promoter was a person who was a trustee of the Company and who was responsible for every statement made in the prospectus. but Mr. Sampson took no responsibility whatever. If the prospectus had turned out to be a tissue of falschoods, Mr. Sampson would have been in no way liable. Mr. Sampson was simply an assistant to Mr. Fenwick in canvassing for applicants for shares. It was true that Mr. Samps n rendered certain services and the question was what was fair, reasonable and just remuneration for those services. Mr. Webber in his opening speech informed the Court that he intended to prove what the custom in Hongkong This heroic and noble-minded priest of the was, and it was for his Lordship to say whether Roman Catholic Church voluntarily became such custom had been proved. SIR.—I see it was stated on behalf of the plaintiff in the case heard vesterday that the Company was floated "without any advertise ment or pulling in the newspapers." This seems to be the new idea in forming Companies and it cannot be said but that some of these new ventures much needed puffing. The fact is that s good sound concern need not fear, but has much to gain by publicity, and that all that is required is an advert sement of the prospectus for a short time. Only a doubtful concern wants personal canvassing, and there certainly was no need of it in regard to Mr. Fenwick's Company. An advertisement in the papers would have brought a much larger number of applications, and, what is of the greatest importance to such a business, a wider dis-tribution for the shares. That would not have cost, I presume; more than $100 or so for advertising in both English and Chinese, where as the plaintiff in the recent case wanted half a dollar a share and another broker said that he would not have done the work under $3,000. It seems to me that this hole and corner way of getting up a public concorn is the very worst for the ompanies, nor is it fair to the nublic. who should be treated all alike. It gives an advantage to those whose offices happen to be in the central part of the Queen's Road while we who are engaged all day at the east or west ends of the town often do not hear of a new scheme till it is too late. In the case of Messrs, Fenwick's Company it did not matter to me personally as I got the chance of some shares before the Company was floated, although I am unacquainted with either Mr. Feawick or the plaintiff broker who mode of world lighting. THE WORLD LIGHTED AND WARMED BY ELECTRICITY.

The growing use of electricity for light and motion has waked up the old sleeping theory that our sun is not a hot mass of tire, but is only an immense body capable of acting; upon some fluid that surrounds the earth. This theory should consider myself entitled to the usual [(his Lordship) did not think either method a recently been restated by Dr. Henry K. Regers of Dunkirk, N. Y. He merits praise for stating experience told me a few days ago that if he were Cross-examined I have on various occasions broker pe was calculated according to the theory with great clearness of language Sky student have always felt the weight of -responsibility involved in assuming that the sun was keeping : p for million of years a fire that could warmall planets 100,000,000 miles away. When the Illinois or Dakota farmer remembers how near he must stand to an anthracite stove in order to secure a summer-like temperature for his physical nature, it becomes difficult for him to imagine what kind of a stove that must be which make torrid sones on planets located hundreds of millions of miles away from the heater. To furnish fuel for such a fire, and

Between the sun and the earth there are about ninety-five millions of miles of solid coldness. The Italian naturalist Vecci declares the averbetween earth and sun is chilly even at noonday. Wonderful heat must that be which can pass through such an awful ice-box and come out bot on the further side of the box! Does the sun send any heat through this expanse of cold Cutting down trees is an operation that often space? If not, therefore is the sau no fire as scorobing which made the desert of Sahara. Dr. Rogers claims that electricity darts its waves across the abyes and becomes luminous and warm the instant it meets the resistance and heat. Thus the in becomes an "electric Bedford Square, London, W. C., England. [499] plant," and each planet is a charcoal stick withn easy reach of the central dynamo.

To this theory the lecturer adds a factor which s new, and, if true, is valuable. In order to save those electric currents or rays intact that they may not break out into light in those spaces where no planet exists, they must meet with no obstacle, and therefore a vacuum is declared to exist in all the interstellar spaces. This vacuum is assumed, and this is the more easily done because there is no one to dispute the claim. Vecci. even, not having been there with his long thermometer, If a vacuum would prevent the elect ic force from being spent on the way, then let us a l consent to the existence of that gulf of nothingness, But up comes this question:-- Does electricity itself love to travel through a vacuum? A recent experiment shows that that is just the condition of things that peculiar force highly enjoys; for a current being passed through a long glass tube. through the centre of which tabe a resisting medium was drawn, that medium became mere luminous as rapidly as the air was pumped out; that s, the lightning ran the faster where there was no sir. The less air the better travelling.

Thus stop by stop this "dventurous lecturer builds up his hypothesis that our daylight and our summer time are the results of an electric system differing from the Brush and Edison patents only in its enormous size. What develops the electricity that is thus assumed to issue from the sun ? That is a difficult question, but it seems less difficult than the task of keeping up that central fire. There is a marvellous band of electricity flowing around our planet from east to west across which band the needle settles, pointing north and south. The sun, being about a million miles in diameter, may create by its motion or by some means an an ocean of this force which sends forth its But we must not expect Dr. Rogers to know all the particulars which pertain to his new

Under this theory it would seem that the sun himself ought not to be visible to us as a central orb. We could to be surrounded by only a luminous air: for why should we see a dark object 95,000,000 of u iles away from the light? Arguments for and against ought now to spring up rapidly. The uses of electricity are opening up a new field of inquiry, and it must be confessed that Dr. Rogers in his Chantauqua papers has made a fair and clear opening to an interesting dobate. Meanwhile the sun is doing a noble bus ness either as a dyname or as a gigantic store.—Chicago Journal.

NAVAL NOTES

A correspondent of the Globe writes:-In the Daily Telegraph of yesterday appeared a most interesting contribution on the Jussian Navy from a correspondent who appears to know thoroughly well what he is talking about, but prefers to remain anonymous. As he says, "the silent, resolute, business-like method in which itussia has gone to work to build up a thoroughly efficient mayy with the strictest regard for economy" is well worthy our attention. She has carried out, or will carry out, her programme of naval construction especially with careful regard to the work each class of v see's will have to do when the inevitable war comes. Thus, in the Black Sea she is providing fir t-class ironclads to give the coup de grace to Turkey, some day, and in the Bultic she is fortifying herself with co at defence moniture, and laying up a store of climers, more or less powerfully armed, to harry our mercantile marine—also some day. She is, be-ides these pre arations for naval war, constructing torpeloboats with "morvellous rapidity and secrescy." of money on the repairs of the Briton was almost comically lame and insufficient, but it is nothing to make a fuse about. It would be more to the purpose if we could insist on the speedy removal of many more such rotten old tube on distant stations, where they are a disgrace to the white as bad as the Briton. The Dolphin, Gannet, Gusnawk, Starling, Forward, Lily, Ready, Flamingo, Rifleman, Griffon, Kingfisher, Mariner, Ranger, Cockehafer, Espoir, Firebrand, Merlin, Wanderer, Raven, Swinger, and one or two more, all these are in commission on foreign stations, all are utterly useless for the purposes of war, and some are so decayed that it is impossible they can ever see England again. It is stated at Port-mouth to be in contemplation to trengthen the Mediterranean Squadron b the addition of the Hero, at present doing duty as tender to the excellent gunnery school. The Hero is a very useful and formidable ironolad, of only 6,200 tons, but carrying two 45-ton guns in her one turret, and has a belt of 12in. steel-faced armour reaching, practically, all round her, so that she meets with Sir Edward Reed's approbation. She cost £473,000, and, there are not wanting good judges who think two Heros would be worth more in a fight than one of the monsters, of more than double her size and cost. that we are about to build. I do not see any reason why we should not have both. If the Hero does go to the Mediterranean, something will have to be done to improve the ventilation in her d. name and turret turing engine rooms. The best is intense there, even in England, and would be unbearable should she chance-to find herself: t Suskin, which is now included in the Med terranean station.
